DOJ,

I cannot tell you how irritating it is to me that we continue to waste time and money in the relentless pursuit of Microsoft. When will the madness end? Microsoft has done this country a great service by making the personal computer easy to use and, along with AOL, brought the internet into millions of homes.

Unfortunately, a few insidious special interests are attempting to use this review period to derail the settlement and prolong this litigation even in the midst of uncertain economic times. The last thing the American economy needs is more litigation that benefits only a few wealthy competitors and stifles innovation. The settlement that federal government and nine states finally reached with Microsoft to address the reduced liability found in the Court of Appeals ruling is tough, but reasonable and fair to all parties involved. I overwhelmingly agree that settlement is good for them, the industry and the American economy.

Thank You,
